ROMA, Nov. 1.
Sutherland, Jell, Haultain and Mitchell appointed advisory council in accordance with wish of assembly.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.
The assembly opened at 2:30 to-day, all members present. Dr. Wilson was elected speaker. The lieutenant governor in his speech specially congratulated the legislature on the prosperity of the country and recognized in the legislation the first step to provincial organization. The revision of the ordinances by Richardson and Forget is now complete. The prairie fire ordinance is to be made more stringent. The assistance of the police in putting out prairie fires was recognized and a bill respecting village trustees will be submitted. The good crops were mentioned and the usefulness of Indian industrial schools and experimental farms were commented on. The liquor question is in the hands of the assembly and the federal government will not doubt consider the assembly's recommendation. In the meantime the law will be carried out. The estimates to be prepared with the assistance of the advisory council will be submitted Monday. The speech will be considered on Monday. Council adjourned until Friday.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.
The Canada Northwest Land Co. and C. P. R. will jointly offer the change to repay the payment of school taxes upon their lands in the Northwest. The supreme court yesterday in refusing to hear the appeal terminates the legal fight in the old issue.

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.
Judges Rouleau, Richardson and McLeod have been appointed local experts in the Northwest assembly with an indemnity of $250 and actual travelling expenses.
The Calgary Alberta & Montana railway are seeking permission to build a line from Calgary to the boundary.

SHERBROOKE, Oct. 28.
Trouble with laborers on the Hertford Branch Railway is again breaking out. The laborers claim the railway company violated the agreement made, and struck in a body, seizing and lashing stores of food and are in possession of the railway and have torn up rails for a considerable distance. The magistrate has called out the militia and there is likely to be a repetition of the violent scenes of a few days ago.

ORANOVILLE, Oct. 28.
A protest has been issued against R. S. White for Carlisle on charges of corrupt practices, by Meyers, barrister, who is acting for Stubbs.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 29.
One week has closed up on the railway trouble and has witnessed absolutely no change in the aspect of affairs. The C. P. R. authorities continue to hold the disputed crossing. The arguments in the second injunction was concluded yesterday and a decision will be given to-day by Judge Killam. It is rumored that Lieutenant Governor Smith, although advised a week ago to summon the legislature for despatch of business at once has after all done so and in consequence Governor Ross has resigned and is continuing resigning but this is contradicted by the premier. However it is learned on good authority that the Lieutenant Governor refused to call the house together again until the injunction now pending in the courts is settled.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.
Northwest Indians in future to be maintained in a new area of St. Lawrence Mountain at the expense of general government.

The opinion prevails that the calling of the Northwest legislature together was regular. It is not it will be legalized by special act.

Search and Haultain will now a special on the Parliament on December 1st for $1,500.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30.
Judge Killam gave his decision re C. P. R. injunction to-day in favor of C. P. R.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 31.
The general feeling of satisfaction over Judge Killam's decision on Monday was fully disturbed Tuesday a. m. by renewal of hostilities by the N. P. & M. people. About noon a gang of navies started to distribute ties up to the C. P. R. The men had two diamonds and said they were going to cross at all hazards. Chief Clarke and Wm. Cox special constables are among the number. The C. P. R. at once placed an engine and gang of men to work proceeding. A dastardly attempt to burn a C. P. R. bridge at Headingley was frustrated before bridge was completely destroyed.

Never has excitement over the railway war been so intense as it was last night and the announcement that school of mounted infantry was called out caused it to increase.

WOLVES and lynx are very numerous this fall and many complaints have been made of late by farmers of their ravages. Either they are more numerous than usual or there is a greater scarcity of food for them as they are not usually very destructive to domestic stock. The total absence of rabbits in the country may be the cause of their boldness this season.

REV. DR. SUTHERLAND in an interview with a Free Press reporter stated that Edmonton showed very marked signs of progress since his former visit. While there he transacted important business in connection with the property owned by the missionary society and arrangements will shortly be made for an erection of a church and parsonage. The question of establishing an academy will also be considered.

It was reported that the snow on Thursday morning started George Godin the outlaw from his hiding place on Stony Plain. Word was received by the police that he was on the way to Lake St. Ann's. They started in pursuit with Arch Ross as teamster and must have been close to him as they found the place where he had lodged under a tree about 8 miles from the lake. His coat, made of a white blanket, was found hanging on the limb of the tree and when they returned sometime afterwards it was gone. There is a brother of the man Godin murdered, living at Lake St. Ann and who is reported to be waiting for an opportunity to avenge himself on George, so that this place is not a safe one for the fugitive to hide in. Koo-se-ka-wa-sia told some of his friends at Stony Plain that he was going away for the winter but would return next spring.

VOL. X.

THE LEGISLATURE

The securing of full responsible government would be sufficient to cause the present legislature to dwell in the grateful remembrance of the people for all time even if nothing else were done. But there is another question that many consider of not so great importance than the one of responsible government, because it enters into the domain of morals as of politics and concerns the home people as much as it does the politicians, and that is the temperance question. Shall the Territories in the future have prohibition or be placed under a license law, is a question that is of great interest to every man woman and child among the population of these Territories. The action of the legislature now legislating at Regina will do much to answer it, although that of the people when opportunity is given them to arbitrate on it will more fully do so. It is a question not so much of dollars and cents as of right and wrong, and the present condition of affairs is unsatisfactory to all parties, as we have now neither one or the other but a mongrel affair composed of the worst features of both. It is imperative that a change should be made in the interests of good government and public morality. The enforcement of our present law with the obnoxious features of the permit system expunged would be satisfactory to all who do not depend on intoxicating liquors for a living or who are not wedded to their use. But the only way to settle this is to allow the people to declare their will at the polls. This clearly is not the case with members elected last June are pledged to

The scope of the present law governing elections should be clearly defined and much needed amendments procured to it if possible. A count that allow a returning officer to count the vote of a candidate by throwing out the vote of any polling station on a mere technicality as in the case of Fisher in the Kinistino election, is radically defective. The worst is there seems to be already within reach of the ordinary candidate or voter the possibility of any kind made to secure purity of elections. This is a question in which every member is interested as if the will of the people can be balked by the action of an unprincipled returning officer exceeding his duty, then one need not wonder how many no one knows who the next victim may be. It certainly will be the one most objectionable to those having control of these matters. If the present law remains unchanged everybody's election is assured and it would save the trouble of the voters to go through the formality of a public election altogether, giving the returning officers elective power and allow them to name their own candidates as members. It seems they can do it anyway. A thorough inquiry into the case above referred to is necessary to amend the law and probably give a man who has been defrauded out of his election his just rights.

There are enough minor questions to be settled and present ordinances requiring amendments to occupy all the time the members can spare. The school law, the disposition of the public lands, the highway law, the public fire ordinance and many more will require legislation. But all the work may be well done if the members of the legislature attend to business and do not spend the time in winning and dining one another that should be devoted to public affairs. The people of the territory are carefully watching the proceedings and it is to be sincerely hoped that the noblest feelings will be expressed in the consideration of important questions, and all work in statesmanlike manner for the material progress of the people and the good government of this vast and rich heritage committed to their keeping. And this will be done if the members of the legislature recognize the truth and justice and not as is to often the case by selfish and personal interests.

NELLY WEBB'S STORY.

A reporter interviewed the woman Nelly Webb and ascertained the following statement.

On Wednesday evening of last week, two policemen Thos. P. Cairney and Thos. Rogers came to my house under the influence of liquor and wanted to get into my room. I refused them admittance—this man Rogers seemed quite willing to take Cairney and go away—but Cairney who then made a threat and who had been using some of the most abusive language that ever came out of a man's mouth—said he would go in, or wreck the house and kill me. Then he warned him that if he did not go away and leave me alone that I would shoot—when he dared me to do so and then pounded the door until the lock gave way and the door opened to the chain, which prevented him coming in—when he began to kick at the lower panels. As soon as he began to kick I left and standing in a doorway with my hand on my revolver in case he should break the door, but I did not get my hand on my revolver and rightly turned around—when the panels gave away from the continuous kicking by the party outside—I then lifted my revolver and fired it through one of the panels broken in the door—striking the man who had broken in my door—in self defence—I then stooped down to look through the panel holding my revolver in my hand with my first finger on the trigger and by some means pressed a little which was the cause of the second shot and shot him dead in the head about two feet from the door in the ground—shortly after the town patrol came in and said I had broke Cairney's hip. The patrol removed from and they had fallen to Connors's office as I understood later on and medical assistance procured.

CAIRNEY'S STORY.

A representative of the BULLETIN interviewed Policeman Cairney and elicited from him the following statement of the trouble he got into last week. He was not suffering at all much from his wounds as he has hitherto but looks pretty badly wrecked. His statement in substance was as follows.

On Wednesday night he and his companions were in Edmonton on their way to Calgary. And went up town for the purpose of spending the time and while there got into the influence of liquor. He does not recollect what happened down town and may have used language as I made the threats reported in him. He went on with Rogers to the house of Nelly Webb's not to stay but to get a comrade who had gone there earlier in the evening and whom he promised to call for when on his way to the barracks. When they got to the house they were refused admittance and the door was locked and chained. He used threats and may have said he would wreck the house, but did not think he threatened to kill her although he may have said so and forgotten about as he was drunk at the time. It was his companion Rogers and not himself who broke the door. When the shot was fired he was about five paces from the door and behind Rogers who stood between the door and himself. It was not his intention to go on a spree but when quarrelsome and having the evening yielded to the temptation and this was the consequence.

The Calgary Tribune publishes an interview with Mr. Fletcher who had just arrived in Calgary from Edmonton by the Edmonton trail. Mr. Fletcher gives it as his opinion that while the trail is passable now that the weather is fine, next spring when the waters are high it will be almost impossible to maintain communication with the north. In his opinion about $50,000 should be spent in grating Nose hill, the bridge at Blind Man which was constructed by Chas. Whitford for $750 should be rebuilt at a cost of about $2,000. A permanent bridge is need over Wolf Creek requiring an expenditure of $150 and $2,000 be spent at Battle River crossing. Besides these the Pipe Stone should have $300, the Big Stone Creek $500, and small sums expended between Nose Creek and Red Deer to make the trail good. With these expenditures the trail between Calgary and Edmonton would be passable and as it is one of the most travelled wagon trails in the Dominion the government should waken up to the importance of having something done on it. During the present year about 50 horses have been killed on this trail and the damage to carts and wagons has been something terrible. The Tribune suggest the employment of half breeds by the government and thus save the expense of feeding them this winter by making them earn their living by working on minor improvements instead of living as paupers on the government.

On going to press an interesting trial in the case of Queen vs. Webb on charge of prostitution is going on at the barracks.

This all absorbing topic of conversation in town is the shooting of Thos. P. Cairney on the night of Oct. 24th, while trying to enter reputed to be a house of ill-fame kept by one Nelly Webb, as she claims in self defence. A full state-ment would have appeared last week but we were unable to procure the facts of the case, but in this issue the accounts of the shooting of Nelly Webb and Thos. P. Cairney are given. These taken together with the evidence given at the trial and facts ascertained since may be summarized as follows. Three policemen named Cairney, Rogers and Cudlip came from Fort Saskatchewan, on Wednesday with the intention of starting next day for Calgary. Passes were given them for the evening, when they went up town got drunk and threatened to paint the town red. They entered the premises of some private individuals, using abusive language, and finally started for Nelly Webb's house. When they arrived there the door was locked and a chain across the inside. They made threats of violence if they were not admitted and on being refused broke in the door. The woman Nelly Webb shot in self defence, as claimed above, through the broken panel and struck Cairney in the thigh, giving him a serious if not dangerous wound. The woman was arrested and next day three more officers of the Mounted Police and committed for trial next May, being released on bail in the meantime $2,000. The guards who were stationed in charge of the house until she had procured bail, lost their arms the following night, while under the influence of liquor, for which they are serving two months and loses a months pay and is to be dismissed from the service while the other was let go. This is in brief the correct story of one of the most disgraceful affairs that has ever occurred in Edmonton, through a set of men that are supposed to protect the citizens and their property. The men are not nearly so much to blame for the contempt in which the force is held as those who have charge of it.
